

Having Your Say about the White Paper

Equity and excellence: Liberating the NHS

What the White Paper is about

This is a big plan from the government about how Health & Social Care services could work in the future.

When this will need to happen

The government have given people until 11th October 2010 to give their feedback about this White Paper.

Lots of people have said they would like to give their feedback.

This to-do list suggests when you might want to meet and decide what goes in the feedback.

You may want to do some of these things differently in your area but it is important that you get your feedback in on time if you want the government to look at it.
